Judge Morton L. Abram

From his boyhood days in the depression as chauffeur, soda jerk, errand boy and gas station and parking lot attendant, Judge Mort L. Abram's career once included such glamorous professions as journalism and the theater. Inspired Abram to enter Roosevelt University in Chicago was his father and on his mother's insistence that he led law school.

"It weren't for her, I probably never would have given law a second thought." After 12 years on the County bench and 12 years of private practice, Abram is retiring in January. He will be missed. He has become a fixture of authority in the South Regional Satellite Court since his chambers opened in 1979 and is regarded by his colleagues there as a teacher of ability.

It is no wonder. Abram's background includes one of such varied experience and community involvement that one might wonder what he, at age 70, will take on. If his past endeavors are any indication, the possibilities are limitless.

Born in Chicago, Abram attended DePaul University law school where he graduated in 1937. After starting his own practice shortly thereafter he found his continuing involvement in Chicago politics a part of his determination to succeed.

His involvement in the Chicago political

Elected Clerks and Dinosaurs

In the July issue of the Barrister, I made some comments about the Clerk of our Court, Robert Lockwood, which Mr. Lockwood did not receive kindly. It was nothing personal then and it is nothing personal now. Unfortunately, Mr. Lockwood's response, from a professional standpoint, has been somewhat less than dramatic.

I invited Mr. Lockwood to write a reply and he has refused to do so. In an effort to improve communications between the Bar and the Clerk's office, I have appointed Mr. Lockwood as an ex officio member of our Courts Committee. In response to our request for suggestions from the Clerk as to how the Bar might assist in improving the operation of the Clerk's office, we have been advised that the lawyers of this Circuit are really a major part of the problem. Mr. Lockwood says that his assistants are deluged with phone calls seeking useless or otherwise available information, that pleadings are improperly filed and/or misidentified, and that the manpower that has to be devoted to correcting the problems that lawyers create for the Clerk reduces the Clerk's efficiency.

To the extent that the Bar can assist the Clerk in improving the efficiency of the operation of the Clerk's office, we Judge George Richardson, Jr.

When Circuit Judge George Richardson, Jr., hands in his resignation December 31, the date of his 65th birthday, he plans to step down from his bench—but only a few steps down, around to the other side. Richardson is making the transition from bench to bar and retirement is the last thing he has in mind.

By January 15, Richardson plans to have fully assumed his role as attorney in the Broward legal community. A 16-year veteran of the bench, he is returning to the practice of real estate and probate law and a renewed independence.

Richardson anticipates the transition will be a smooth one despite the fact that, as he muses, "nobody argues with me now." But it is that desired independence which led him to the decision one year ago that it is time for a change.

The primary reason he has chosen to renew practice is his need to remain active. Forget golf, Richardson feels the need to "be accomplishing something."

Born in Rydal, Pennsylvania, Richardson is a first generation American of Irish descent who came to Fort Lauderdale in 1936 when his parents bought a golf course in Wilton Manors. Richardson resides there still on the eight-acre tract of land which is his oasis, although the majority of the land was sold years ago.

will do so. The Courts Committee, ably chaired by Judge Miette Burnstein and Harry Carratt, has already communicated with the Continuing Legal Education Committee, chaired by Linda Conanan, for the purpose of organizing, with the assistance of the Clerk, a nuts-and-bolts seminar. The seminar will be targeted at young attorneys and legal secretaries, and perhaps others, to increase their understanding of the intricacies of the operation of the Clerk's office.

We won't deny that we can improve ourselves as practicing attorneys in this county. What is disturbing is that we have yet to hear any suggestions for self-improvement from the Clerk.

I am still absolutely convinced that the removal of the Clerk from the political process and making the Clerk directly responsible to the Judges of the Court is the answer.

Don Wich's Legislative Committee is considering my proposal that the Bar support special legislation to make the Clerk's office appointive. Article V, Section 16 of the Florida Constitution provides: "... Notwithstanding any other provision of the Constitution, the duties of the Clerk of the Circuit Court may be divided by special or general law between two officers, one serving as Clerk of the Court and one serving as ex officio Clerk of the Board of County Commissioners, auditor, recorder, and custodian of all County funds."

In addition, pursuant to Article VIII, Section 1 of the Constitution, a special law approved by a vote of the electors of the County, could make the Clerk an appointed official.

Leaving the clerk solely responsible to the Judges is so obviously beneficial to the efficient operation of the court that more need be said. In our representative democracy there is no practical cauldron led him to a position as a counsellor for the Illinois Vocational Rehabilitation Unit. As a result, education has been one of his lifelong dedications.

Elected president of the Illinois College of Optometry in 1947, Abram was instrumental in the accreditation in 1957 of the college which is now established on the campus of the Illinois Institute of Technology thanks to his efforts. However, realizing that his opportunities for further advancement in optometric education were limited, Abram decided to resume the practice of law.

In 1957, Abram moved to Hollywood, but law was temporarily postponed for business ventures which proved profitable. It was not until the influence of his friends, attorney Thomas A. Thomas and Judge J. Leonard Fleet, that Abram formed the firm of Fuer, Fleet and Abram, located at that time on Harrison Street in Hollywood.

After some time in his own practice, Abram submitted his name for candidacy for the newly created County Court post in 1972.

Although Abram resisted satellite assignment, in 1979 Chief Judge George Tedder, Jr., informed him that his time had come to move to the old Pembroke Park Courthouse, and when he learned soon after that the Hollywood Satellite was to be completed, he requested transfer. He has since resisted re-assignment to the Central Courthouse, but now, as he terms it, "my lease is up."

need for the election of an administrative officer. Hopefully, in the next session of the Legislature, our legislative delegation will take note and act accordingly.

Terrence Russell
President, BCBA

Full retirement is out of the question; Abram will serve the state as one of 38 retired judges.

Abram plans also to travel with his wife of 45 years the former Gladys Eckstein of Springfield, Illinois. In addition, Abram hardly intends to drop out of sight of the community involvement he has pursued for years.

Abram has served as president of B'nai B'rith, president of the U.S. Association of Schools and Colleges of Optometry, vice chairman of the Southside Planning Commission in Chicago, president of the County Court Judges Conference of Florida, president of the American Jewish Committee and has served as a loyal member to the American and Broward Bar Associations. Presently a member of the board of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, Abram and his wife have both served as president of Temple Beth El in Hollywood where they are members.

Abram's lifelong service to his community, however, has been unrivaled by his service to Broward's litigants and lawyers. It is certain he will be missed in the Hollywood Satellite in his capacities as magistrate, teacher and friend.

1984 Legislation of Interest to the Legal Profession

There were 2,498 bills introduced during the past legislative session. Of that number 685 passed. The following is a summary of those bills that passed the 1984 Florida Legislature which should be of interest to Florida Bar members.

Members desiring copies of particular items of legislation summarized should contact:

(For Laws) Bureau of Laws, Department of State, The Capitol, Tallahassee, Florida 32301, (904) 488-2766.

(For Senate Bills) Honorable Joe Brown, Secretary of the Senate, The Capitol, Tallahassee, Florida 32301, (904) 488-1621.

(For House Bills) Honorable Allen Morris, Clerk of the House of Representatives, The Capitol, Tallahassee, Florida 32301, (904) 488-1157.

Note—The task of keeping up with new laws can be facilitated through a service of the Bureau of Laws, Department of State, The Capitol, Tallahassee, Florida 32301. For a fee of $20, copies of all new laws will be mailed to subscribers on a regular basis.

Family Law

HB 114—Child Support Enforcement. Creates a central depository in each county for payment of all alimony and child support payments, and requires employers to deduct from the paychecks of delinquent spouses any court ordered child support payments. This act becomes effective January 1, 1985. Chapter 84-100.

SB 166—Dissolution of Marriage. Provides that judgments as well as orders of court may be enforced and satisfied by attachment or garnishment for amounts due with respect to certain dissolution, alimony or child support proceedings. This act became effective July 1, 1984. Chapter 84-135.

HB 508—Dissolution of Marriage. Provides that in a dissolution proceeding, the court shall consider evidence of spouse abuse as evidence of detriment to a child, thereby allowing the court, in its discretion, to order sole parental custody with or without visitation in the event of spouse abuse. This act becomes effective October 1, 1984. Chapter 84-152.

SB 251—Spouse Abuse. Modifies and provides definitions of spouse abuse, changes certain duties of the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services and changes certification requirements for spouse abuse centers, providing for certification denials, suspensions and revocations. This act becomes effective October 1, 1984. Chapter 84-128.

HB 487—Grandparents Visitation Rights. Provides for visitation rights of grandparents. This act becomes effective October 1, 1984. Chapter 84-64.

SB 495—Domestic Violence. Sets forth the duties and functions of the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services regarding domestic violence, and provides funding for domestic violence centers and victim referral. This act becomes effective October 1, 1984. Chapter 84-343.

HB 173—Child Support Enforcement. Requires service of certain process by the sheriff in certain actions under the child support enforcement program and authorizes certain reimbursement to sheriff for such services. This act becomes effective October 1, 1984. Chapter 84-141.

HB 324—Adoption. Redefines the term "intermediary" with respect to the "Florida Adoption Act" to include child-placing agencies licensed in another state under certain circumstances, and clarifies existing language regarding out-of-state placement. This act became effective July 1, 1984. Chapter 84-101.

HB 428—Adoption. Requires certain disclosure by an intermediary to persons seeking to adopt a child. This act became effective July 1, 1984. Chapter 84-28.

After four years of army service in the South Pacific he entered the University of Miami law school. Upon graduation from Miami in 1951, Richardson returned to Wilton Manors and established a practice where he remained for 17 years actively involved in his community.

Former president of the Wilton Manors city council and chairman of the Wilton Manors Police Civil Service Board for years, Richardson has since limited his community involvement to his position on the board of directors for Pine Crest Preparatory School, a position he has held for the past five years.

Married to the former Helen Williams of Fort Lauderdale, Richardson chose a number of years ago to devote more of his time to his family. It is this decision he attributes to his close relationship with his three children and grandchild.

Appointed to the County Court in 1968 by Governor Claude Kirk, Richardson remained there until his appointment to the Circuit Court in 1970. He has served both in the criminal and civil divisions.

Richardson will, of course, miss the bench and his association with many of the young lawyers he feels he normally wouldn't have gotten to know.

"They've (the attorneys) brought me a lot with their new ideas and applications. I think I've heard every argument in the book. It's kept me on my toes."

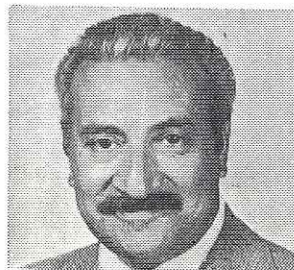

Richardson's new practice is bound to do the same and, at 65, he has shown the energy and secured the respect of the community to ensure a thriving one at that.
